3 Millions Higher Than Last Year's; Breaks $2 A Bale

Forecast Is Based on the Conditions as of August 1

ARKANSAS ESTIMATE

Indicated Production in State Placed at 1,493,000 Bales

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department announced Monday that this year's cotton crop would total 15,593,000 bales.

The forecast was based on conditions prevailing August 1 and on the area in cultivation July 1, less the 10-year average abandonment which was announced as 33,729,900 acres.

The crop reporting board said the final out-turn would depend upon whether various influences affecting the crop during the remainder of the season are more or less favorable than usual.

Last year's crop was 12,398,882 equivalent 500-pound bales.

This year's acreage in cultivation in Arkansas, less the 10-year average abandonment, was placed at 3,040,000.

The condition of the crop was reported to be 84 per cent normal, and indicated production in Arkansas would be 1,493,000 bales.

The Hope police department has killed more than 50 dogs in the past three months, several of which were found to be affected with rabies.

Tennessee's Child Bride Quits School After Teacher Whips Her

Nine-Year-Old Bride of Charlie Johns Gets "Switching" for What Teacher Termed as "General Mischievousness"

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Two days in school was enough for Mrs. Eugene Winstead Johns, East Tennessee's celebrated nine-year-old child bride, her teacher, Wade Ferguson, revealed here.

Ferguson, teacher of the two-room Mairmont grade school in a remote section of Hancock county said, the youthful wife of 22-year-old Charlie Johns quit the school last week after he "switched" her for what he termed "general mischievousness."

"Eunice indicated to me the first day of school that she might give me trouble," Ferguson declared. "I had to scold her several times that day, but hesitated to punish her."

"She ignored the scoldings and on the second day, I had to switch her. She was jumping from place to place over the schoolroom and wouldn't stay in her seat."

Ferguson said the day after he punished Eunice, her husband came to the schoolhouse to enter a protest.

"Why, you can't whip another man's wife," the teacher quoted Johns as saying.

"Oh, yes, I can whip another man's wife if another man sends his wife to school to me," Ferguson said he told Charlie.

He declared Charlie then demanded to see the switch used in punishing Eunice, contending that his wife had the "blood cut out of her leg."

Ferguson related that Eunice, who was in the primer class, did not enter school when the term opened July 26. He said last Monday was her first day and Tuesday her last.

Miller County Has 2 New Producers

Prices on Leases and Royalties Climb to New High

TEXARKANA—The completion of two oil wells and one gaser in south Miller county, Arkansas, extended the Rodessa (La.) oil field one mile into Arkansas, C. E. Harris, Arkansas conservation agent, announced Sunday night.

All three of the wells are owned by Freeman W. Burford of Dallas, Texas, president of the East Texas Refining Company.

The Buford-Eason No. 2 came in under its own pressure about 6 p. m. Sunday and was averaging 112 barrels of oil an hour through a three-eights inch choke. The Burford-Gerald well, located one-half mile southwest of the McClanahan Capps discovery well, came in about the same time with an hourly flow of 50 barrels through three-eights inch choke.

The third completion of the day was the Burford-Capps No. 1 which came in as a gaser, making 40,000,000 cubic feet of gas and approximately 20 barrels of oil an hour.

More than 150 carloads of people from Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas watched the wells come in. Prices of leases and royalties hit a new high.

C. of C. Will Make Membership Drive

Quick Completion of the Budget for Year's Work Is Urged

B. L. Kaufman, president of the Hope Chamber of Commerce, said Monday that the board of directors and E. H. Lilly, secretary, were making arrangements to launch a membership drive.

"A personal letter is going to a number of business men of Hope over the signature of Mr. Kaufman urging that they take an active and energetic interest in this membership drive," Mr. Lilly said.

"The reasons for the quick completion of this membership drive is obvious to every citizen in this communitl. To properly place your chamber of commerce where it should be, its most necessary that we have our membership complete, this also means we will have full and complete knowledge of just what our budget or working funds will be.

"That means a new and enlarged program of work, therefore the membership drive should be short and definite—to prolong it would be to kill it. President Kaufman urges those of you who have been requested to assist in this drive, answer your communication by telephone, as requested just as soon are received," Mr. Lilly concluded.

"We believe," said Mr. Kaufman, "that there are few if any, business interests in this city, large or small, that is not interested in the problems of the city. We are all agreed that Hope is the best city in southwest Arkansas. An active chamber of commerce will make it a better one. Lets get together, and stay together," Mr. Kaufman urged.

To Oppose Bailey in Election for U. S. Senate Seat

46 Counties Send Delegates to Little Rock Convention

DEFY COMMITTEE

J. Rosser Venable and R. F. Waters Withdraw as Candidates

The convention acted in defiance of the State Democratic Committee which previously nominated Governor Carl E. Bailey for the vacancy.

The roll call in the convention brought responses from delegates of 46 counties.

Congressman Miller's name was placed in the nomination by S. M. Casey of Batesville. W. H. Abington, state representative from White county, seconded the nomination.

After the nomination, the convention recessed awaiting Miller's appearance.

Three hundred and fifty chairs placed in the ball room of Hotel Marion for the convention were filled before the hour of convening and an overflow crowd was in aisles and around the walls when the gavel fell.

Following the convention's nomination, J. Rosser Venable of Little Rock and R. F. Waters, who previously announced against Bailey, withdrew their names as candidates for the vacant senate seat.

Miller Accepts

Congressman Miller, who arrived in Little Rock from Washington over the week-end and met friends in the hotel block away from the scene of Monday's convention, was advised at once of the convention's action and appeared presonally to accept the nomination.

Introduced by C. A. Walls, Lonoke attorney and nephew of the late Senator Robinson, he was given an ovation as he said:

"I am ready to go with you in this battle to restore to the people of Arkansas what is about to be taken away from them. I am not afraid of the uestion of democracy.

"I am as good a democrat today as I was yesterday. There is nothing anyone can do to destroy my democracy. My name is going to be on the ballot, whether as an independent or what not as my democracy is unstained."

Ambulance Chasing Is Hit by Attorney

Practice Is 'Cut and Dried' Business for Some, Lawyer Says

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—William W. Shepherd, Little Rock attorney, announced that he had filed a petition was the Arkansas supreme court asking it to promulgate rules governing ethics of practicing attorneys.

"The Arkansas Bar Association twice has failed in its efforts to obtain passage in the legislature of a bill for an integrated bar," Shepherd said. "I believe filing of a petition with proper support, will be the means of action being taken by the supreme court."

Shepherd said his petion asked specifically that rules be directed at "ambulance chasing," which he charged was a "cut and dried business for numerous lawyers in this state."

"Common 'ambulance chasing' is a pernicious form of law violation which destroys the confidence of the public in lawyers of all classes," Shepherd's petition stated.

"If permitted in a community, the loss of confidence and respect for the courts may follow. Ambulance chasing is being practiced in this state, attorneys as well as laymen engage in it. Certain attorneys maintain crews of workers and solicitors and finance them and their 'catch' for the purpose of instituting and maintaining legal proceedings and suits against certain solvent defendants.

"All lawyers are charged with the duty of correcting law violations and when those in their own ranks openly carry on a systematic practice of law violation such as the practice of barratry, the condemnation for the public will fall upon all the members of this old and honored profession."

Shepherd said the supreme court having the power to issue licenses to practice law, likewise has the power to revoke such licenses for cause.

"We do not need additional legislation to curb the ambulance chaser. The present law is sufficient," Shepherd said. "In Missouri the supreme court issue rules regulating the legal practice. The same is done in several other states. Promulgation of rules by our own court will go a long way toward assuring the respect of the public for our court sand legal professions."

In Any Foreign War—"Include Us Out"

THE FIRST job of the United States government is to see that Americans in the war zones around Peiping, China, or in Spain, for all that, are given the best possible chance to get out there to places of safety if they want to go.

The second is to make it clear to them that if they do not want to take advantage of such a chance for safety, they remain in the danger zones at their own risk.

That is 1937 talk. Back in 1900, we went all mooney about the idea that an American must be safe anywhere in the world, and that the last ounce of American force would be exerted to make him so. That sounds dandy in a Kipling poem, but today we feel different. Even august Britain, which has done considerable sounding off about the safety of a British citizen wearing his dress suit in the jungle, has backed down from this stiff-necked dictum on several recent occasions.

x x x

TODAY, THE question is asked with reverse English. Has an American citizen, given a chance to get out, the right to stay in a situation of danger where injury or death to him may bring down a horrible war on the heads of millions of people back home who had no interest in him or in the enterprises which led him into the danger zones?

Today we are beginning to feel that only Americans actually on public business for the government have a right to expect its protection, and that private individuals selling oil or salvation in dangerous quarters are strictly on their own.

Any one of the 1300 Americans in Peiping and Tientsin who refuses to co-operate in safety measures take for Americans; who stubbornly insists on remaining when it is no longer safe, may be killed and thus parcepitate a crisis.

But today we at home are likely to ask questions before our temperature rises in a hot demand for a war of revenge for some such "incident." We want to know what the victim was doing there? For whom? Was any American public interest affected? Did the victim co-operate in efforts to remove him from danger? Would going to war about it do any good anyway, in the long run?

x x x

SPECIFIC problems arising out of ticklish situations like those at Peiping must be solved as they come along. Most of us don't understand the details, anyway.

But the government ought to be guided by this principle regarding any pending foreign war, a principle which 99 44/100ths percent of all Americans echo today in the classic words of Mr. Sam Goldwyn:

"Gentlemen, include us out!"

Education—Under Fire

INCIDENTAL to the major news of the battle for Madrid comes an item to the effect that children in Spanish government territory are going to start to school again.

In Madrid alone, about 100,000 youngsters of school age who remained in the city because their parents would not consent to their evacuation, were not able to attend classes because their schools were within range of Rebel guns.

Since Madrid is still a target for Rebel missiles, it is interesting to see just how the minister of education solved the problem of reopening the schools. Here's just how simple it was: "Madrid children will have their schools even if we have to open them under fire from enemy batteries," he said.

Thus, despite great obstacles, the nobility and dignity of learning is re-established. Spanish children may proceed in their quest of a higher existence, studying history while it's made, with daily object lessons in the latest, most destructive methods of "perpetuating" civilization.

Incomplete Knowledge About Vitamins Call for Care in Purchasing Them

This is the concluding article in an 11-part series dealing with vitamin deficiency and how it affects the human body.

(No. 287)

It is not certain that we have isolated all of the vitamins that are of importance in human life. Nor is it certain that we know all we should know about any one of the vitamins already isolated.

In addition to the vitamins that have been mentioned, we know that the fatty acids contain some substances necessary to health and life and that a deficiency in these substances may result in certain symptoms related to the skin, in hemorrhage and in similar conditions.

One of these particularly is the substance known as linoleic acid, which has also been called vitamin F. Fortunately, this vitamin is present in milk and milk products, eggs, the leafy vegetables, olive oil and similar oils, and is therefore not likely to be missed in most well-balanced diets.

We know that there are 12 mineral elements at least that are necessary for the normal human being. They include calcium, chlorine, copper, iodine, iron, magnesium, manganese, phosphorus, potassium, sodium, sulphur and zinc. Other elements as well are sometimes found in the body, but whether their appearance is necessary has not yet been determined.

We know that the human body has to have oxygen and water. Here again, however, the effect is not like that of the vitamins.

We know that the human being must have in his diet some of the anti-anemic factor, which is found in the liver, in the kidney, and in the wall of the stomach. We do not know, however, the exact nature of this anti-anemic factor.

We know merely that when people have pernicious anemia that this factor seems to be absent from their bodies and the giving of this factor in the food brings about an improvement in the formation of red blood cells and thereby provides a control of the anemic condition.

Because of knowledge of the vitamins is only beginning to be developed and because the public has not been fully informed concerning these substances, many promoters endeavor to fool people by making claims about new vitamins and uring people to use, internally or externally, preparations alleged to contain these new vitamins.

Nowadays one hears of soaps, creams, ointments and similar materials said to be enhanced by the content of some new vitamin, when actually there is no vitamin present.

Furthermore, there is no evidence that any of these vitamins will be absorbed through the skin or that they will affect the body in any way when applied in this manner. Before spending money on vitamins, be sure, first of all, that they are recognized as vita-

Unfriendly Neighbor Children

A mother writes that her girl is lonely, the other children on the street be-mins; second, that they are actually in the preparation you buy in the quantity necessary to have an affect.

NEXT: Starting a special series of 14 articles on allergy, or unusual sensitivity of the body to certain substances.

ing old friends and making no move to include her in their games.

The child has made as many overtures as she can, says her mother, but it gets her nowhere. Now what is she to do?

I think that time will help, because only three months have elapsed since her arrival in the neighborhood. But on the other hand, summer with its daily contacts is usually a season of easy acquaintanceship. The very sky is an introduction. So Anne must be overly shy, or else this group of old neighbors is being deliberately mean.

Older people than Anne have found themselves in the same situation, because the intimate circle resents intrusion, as they think, of their rights and privileges.

Pick Approachable Playmate

It is a narrow view, of course, but cliques have always been and always will be.

Usually there is one child in such a group, however, who has less worship of her own importance than the grip of her friends, as well as possessing more vision and a kinder heart.

Children in a crowd are more heartless than they are individually. It may be that each little girl on Anne's street is very approachable herself, but fears to make a concession that would be voted down by the rest. In short, they are allowing the tight little charter of their club to interfere with personal expansion.

I suggest that Anne should not try to crash the entire crowd, or stand around hoping for a stray word of welcome. It won't come this way.

To buy her way, socially, seems rather ignoble, but this is exactly the way it has to be done, usually. Not by display, or deliberate favors, but by finding a common interest with that ose who is most approachable. It may be she has a dog like Jane's, or that both have the same make of wheels. Perhaps Anne has a book by the same author as Jane's libary book. Almost anything provides a gemmon ground for interest. Anne may use this as a stepping stone for recognition. She needs suggestion and help.

Don't Make Desire Obvious

We are taking it for granted, of course, that Anne herself is likeable and natural. Children are quick to sense artificially. We are likewise supposing that Anne is presentable and mannerly.

What she must not do i sto make it too apparent that she is dying to break in. This is fatal. She might import one or two visitors so as to make it apparent that she has some good friends of her own. Loneliness is never an asset, strange as it may seem.

When Anne knows a few of the girls, she may ask them in to a small party. But all the display in the world won't buy real friends. She must herself be kind. And in turn, be friends with other lonely strangers in the future.

Best-Dressed Woman

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JUDITH IRVING, heroine, America's best dressed woman.
PHILIP IRVING, Judith's estranged husband.
MARTA ROGERS, Judith's rival.
BRUCE KNIGHT, author, Judith's old classmate.
MILLICENT BAYNE, Bruce's protege.

Yesterday: Phil calls Judith, complains because the papers report she is romancing with Bruce Knight. He insists she move on to Reno. Judith hangs up.

CHAPTER X

FROM her place, on the quiet ranch, Judith was aware that the newspapers had not relinquished the story in which she was featured. Because she was the best dressed woman in America she was news, high news, to every girl and matron. They knew now, one and all, that she had left a devoted husband in order to marry the well-known actor. They would read about her clothes all the more eagerly, sure that they had exercised a charm for Bruce. The couturiers would welcome her. Life was that way.

Even the messages which Bruce's publicity agent handed to the press had little influence. It was a better story to have Bruce marrying Judith than Millicent.

The whole incident was getting on Judith's nerves when she glanced up from a magazine she was perusing in desultory fashion one afternoon, to see a tall young man standing on the veranda.

"Ronnie, where did you come from?" she asked.

"New York," he answered tersely. "Have they gone, Mrs. Irving?"

"Millicent and Bruce? No, they leave tomorrow. Won't you sit down? I'll get Millicent for you. She's resting."

Judith's heart ached for the boy. He had come to tell Millicent for the last time that he loved her. He did not know, yet, that young hearts heal.

JUDITH saw Millicent and Ronnie ride off into the sage together. They didn't know it but she knew it. She saw Bruce come in from another door and watch them go. His eyes looked a little frightened. Millicent turned, sighted him, and blew him a kiss. He waved back.

Judith picked up the magazine again. It was a mystery and detective book of yarns that one of the cowboys had left on the living room table. For lack of anything better she had been glancing at it. Here and there pictures of people who had figured in sensational robberies or kidnapings or murders were given. Suddenly her eyes focused on a face. She knew it—or a face like it. She sat up straighter in astonishment. It belonged to Marta Rogers' divorced husband, about whom so little was known. Another name captioned the picture. The story said that he had served time for one of the most amazing jewel rackets of recent years. He was a genial gentleman with a flair for pretty words—

Judith took the magazine photograph to Bruce. "Do you know him?" she asked.

He shook his head. She decided to say nothing. Instead she would return to New York when Bruce and Millicent left the next night.

RESERVATIONS had been promised on a ship that left Denver the next evening. The rancher would take his guests to the early afternoon train for Denver. Final arrangements were completed before Millicent and Ronnie came back from their ride. Ronnie shook hands with everyone and said goodby. Millicent was quiet. She went over to Bruce and slipped her arm through his.

Because they were leaving the next day, everyone went to bed early. Judith wakened in the morning, oddly refreshed, and put on the simple black suit in which she had arrived. She would pick up her baggage where it waited at the village inn. Nothing had been lost, she had been told.

Bruce was at breakfast. Millicent had not appeared.

The rancher, entering the room, interrupted them. "I was to give you this note this morning, Mrs. Irving."

"Miss Millicent?" Judith began. "Do you know where she is?"

The rancher nodded. "She went off in a car last night, after you all went to bed, with that young feller that came yesterday. Nice sort of chap. They're right for each other, that boy and girl."

Judith held out the envelope to Bruce who slit it open. Aloud she read the brief note: "Forgive me, darling, and make my peace with Bruce, if you can. It was Ronnie whom I loved all the time. I knew it when the ship began to fall that terrible night. I've been praying for him to come ever since. Bruce was an infatuation, that was all. But a terrible one. I never suffered over Ronnie as I did over him for a little while. And I wanted him to fall in love with me even when he didn't want to. I never meant to hurt him. Wish me happiness, dear. Ronnie and I are being married tomorrow. And find happiness for yourself, Judy dear. Remorsefully and happily, Millicent."

Bruce was quiet during the rest of the day—the leaving of the ranch house, the ride by train to Denver and the airplane takeoff. Only once did he refer to the elopement. Then he said: "Our host sensed the truth—they're right for each other, Millicent and Ronnie. The same generation. Just as you and I were right for each other, Judy, and didn't know it."

Bruce left the airplane at Chicago. He was staying there for a week. Judith changed to the ship for Newark. It would not have been wise for Bruce to have come on with her, anyway, they both knew.

AT the Newark airport Judith faced a barrage of cameras and reporters, head up, eyes bright, cheeks flushed. Her poise did not fail her. She had dressed in her smartest clothes. If she could be nothing else, she could be the best dressed woman in the world!

She went to the St. Regis because it was old and quiet. Bruce's press agent found her there a little later. He handed her an evening paper. She read a story which told of the marriage of Ronnie and Millicent and swung quickly back to her romance with Bruce, which, the story said, she had attempted to conceal behind a fictitious romance between the actor and the debutante.

The telephone rang. It was Phil. "Judith, you're making a monkey out of yourself. Everyone in town is laughing," he said. "Will you take a boat to Paris and get your divorce so you can marry that theatrical nut or won't you?"

"I won't and he isn't a nut and he doesn't love me any more than I love him," she answered. "Phil, this isn't for publication, but Milly walked out on him. He can't publish that, and she can't let the public know she jilted him."

He hesitated, half believing. "What are you doing tomorrow?"

"Shopping."

"Where will you be at 2?"

She named a couturier's.

"May I pick you up for lunch?" He hesitated. "Judy, I missed you."

"I'll be waiting for you, Phil," she answered. He had missed her—

He told Marta what he was doing. When Judith entered the shop the next day, the golden-haired woman was waiting.

A Book a Day

Gem World Odyssey 'Too Good to Miss'

As a boy, Louis Kornitzer sorted dirty seed pearls brought from the ghettos of Poland to his father's shop. Just a few years later, this lad had learned the wiles of trading in the great gem marts of the world.

Engaged today in diamond trading in London, he is recognized as one of the most prominent jewel dealers of modern times.

So Louis Kornitzer has spent his entire life in the pursuit of beauty and adventure and he appears to have left none o fhis absorbing story out in his splendid autobiography. "The Pearl Trader" (Sheridan House, $3.50). Here is a book proving autobiographies of businessmen need not invariably be dull.

With the "world as his oyster," Kornitzer has sought gems in isolated Brome, Australia; from there to Sulu and Zamboanga; in Hong Kong, the Far East in general, and in many other places. Scores of good stories and anecdotes roll out of these adventures.

"The Pearl Trader" is in fact three books in one. The first details the author's adventures as a pearl and pearl shell buyer in the Far Eastern Islands and Australia.

The second treats of the amusing and shrewd intricacies of the pearl and gem markets of the world's greatest cities: Paris, London, New York.

And finally, you read of pearl lore itself, much of it hiterto unpublished, revealing the secrets of this far-flung trade.

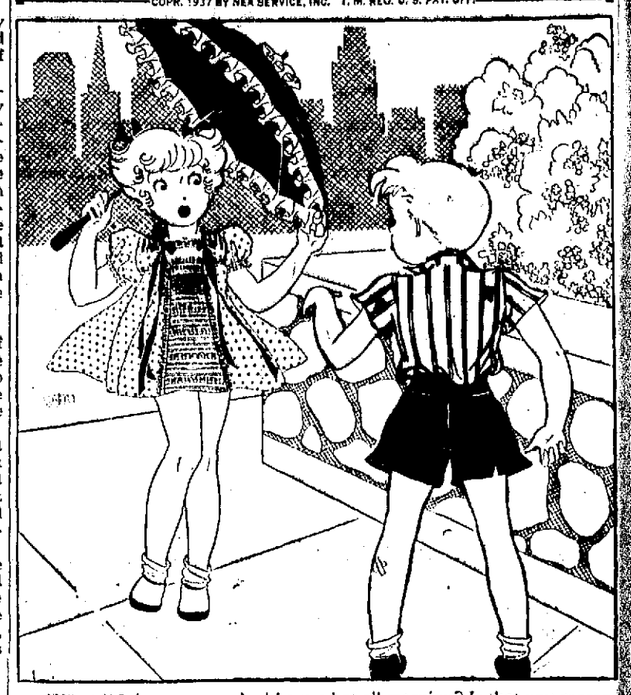

"The Pearl Trader" is the Heiser "odyssey" of the gem world and as such, decidedly too good to fniss.

Candid Cameras Keep Film Players Alert for the "Ungarded Moment"

HOLLYWOOD.—Short takes: The first employer-paid strike, and a sit-down strike at that, was staged at the Warner studio the other day. Five hundred extras were hired to sit all over the lot for strike scenes in "Stand-In."

Supervisors on other companies, noticing so many idle people around, nearly went crazy until they learned that the extras really were working.

The candid picture-snappers, together with hundreds of fans who also making movie-players self-conscious carry cameras all over Hollywood, are to the point of distraction.

But Director Gregory Ratoff made them do the scene again, after Sanders had been patched up. "You bleed too fast, my frand," he reprimanded Sanders. "The shot didn't look real."

Quite a lot of prominent people are said to have written California's Governor Merriam asking that he deny extradition of John Montague, the golfing marvel.

Besides the Warner Brothers' flicker about the loss of Amelia Earhart, RKO is planning an authentic film-biography of the aviatrix. If this is done, Katharine Hepburn almost certainly will have the leading role.

Miss Hepburn, by the way, may have a closer interest in aviation soon. There are persistent reports that she and Howard Hughes are about to take off for an altar somewhere, or a justice of the peace.

Joan Fontaine had her first date in months the other evening. With Cary Grant.

Today's Pattern

WHEN Schiaparelli designed the clothes for Mae West's latest picture, she brought into fashion the styles of the romantic 1900's. One of them, the shirred basque shown in Pattern 8041, is already the fashion success of the season. It's a style easy to wear. The smooth fitted bodice and sleeves deeply shirred in the armhole take inches off your waistline. Make in black satin or silk rayon jersey. To highlight the shirred bodice, used jeweled buttons to trim it.

Pattern 8041 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material.

The Fall pattern book is now ready and includes 32 pages of late designs. Purchased separately, it's 15 cents. If ordered with the pattern above, send in only an additional 10 cents.

To secure your pattern, with complete step-by-step sew chart, send 15 CENTS IN COIN with your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE to TODAY'S PATTERNS, 11 STERLING PLACE, BROOKLYN, N. Y., and be sure to MENTION THE NAME OF THIS NEWSPAPER.

child had rallied from similar attacks, after mucous had been sucked from her throat, permitting her to breathe again.

The aspirator, or suction tube, failed to relieve her the fifth time. Quickly Dr. John Corbit, who delivered the baby one minute after the death of Mary Boccacsini early Friday, administered a heart stimulant. Then he tried artificial respiration.

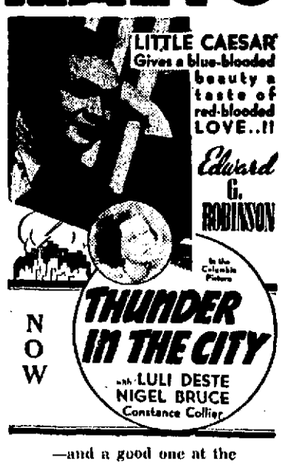

Several hours earlier attendants had turned off the oxygen supply into the baby's new incubator, to learn her reaction to normal air. Twice she stopped breathing momentarily and the experiment was ended.

The baby's mother, Mrs. Mray Boccacsini, died early Friday morning of a spinal disease for which the doctors said there was no cure. Nurses who had watched at her bedside for 36 hours waiting for her to die called Dr. Corbett asleep in the next room. A minute later he had delivered the tiny girl alive.

The child would not have been born normally for another two weeks or a month.

The Choir Invisible

Oh, may I join the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence; live
In pulses stirred to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn
For miserable aims that end with self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars,
And with their mild persistence urge men's search
To vaster issues. So to live is heaven:
To make undying music in the world,
Breathing a beautious order that controls
With growing away ;nsxAotha B,?
With growing sway the growing life of man.
May I reach
The purest heaven,—be to other souls
That cup of strength in some great agony,
Enkindle generous ardor, feed pure love,
Beget the miles that have no cruelty,
Be the sweet presence of a good diffused,
And in diffusion ever more intense!
So shall I join the choir invisible
Whose music is the gladness of the world—Selected, (by request).

Child Is Awarded to Foster Parents

Dramatic Fight Over Custody of Chicago Baby Is Ended

CHICAGO—(AP)—The weeping mother of baby Donald Horst has surrendered him to the woman who had cared for him since the day of his birth.

The dramatic four-day fight over the custody of the 31 months old lad came to a sudden end with the announcement by Attorney John E. Johnson that Lyda Nelson had signed a document consenting to the adoption of the child by Mr. and Mrs. Otto Horst.

Miss Nelson collapsed in tears after affixing her signature to the paper.

Mrs. Horst offered her consolation; then commented:

"I'm so happy I am numb all over."

She said no money was involved in the agreement.

Johnson opined the settlement precluded a court battle over custody of the dark-eyed boy. He indicated formal adoption proceedings will be instituted in court Monday.

Meanwhile, little Donald remained in St. Vincent's orphanage, confined to his bed by a slight fever caused by excitement.

The infant was born to Miss Nelson and her common-law husband, John Regan, a machinist, on January 6, 1935. He was given to Mrs. Horst and her husband, part owner of a sound equipment company, 15 minutes after his nativity.

Last Tuesday, he was carried away from the Horst home in an exclusive northwest side residential district by the Rekans. The police first believed he had been kidnaped but the Regans told Assistant Prosecutor Crowley the next day they had snatched the youngster because they were his natural parents and they had just learned his whereabouts.

The child was sent to the orphanage pending disposition of the case.

After the conference in Johnson's office, Regan said:

"We believe that Donald will have a better home where he is going."

"Yes," Miss Nelson interposed, "the Morsts can give him much more than we can. But we do want to see the boy regularly."

"The Regans will be able to see the baby two or three times a year," Mrs. Horst said. Donald will have everything he wants."

Dr. L. Morris Black, chief of staff at the orphanage, ordered Donald confined to bed in a single room and barred all visitors. "To forestall any undue excitement which would result in a rise in temperature."

Family Reunion Is Held Ozan Sunday

Mrs. Sallie Green and Others Are Honored; 58 Attend

By WINNIE SPARKS

OZAN.-(Special)—Fifty-eight friends and relatives gathered at the Mrs. Sallie Green's home one mile east of Ozan Sunday for a reunion in honor of Mrs. Green and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Green, of Beeville, Texas.

The affair was one of the most delightful and enjoyable occasions held in the community for a long time. The delicious picnic luncheon was served on large tables spread under the beautiful shades on the Green lawn. Heavily laden with delicacies of all kinds, the tables brought back memories of the many family dinners that the Green home had held in the past.

There were 38 luncheon guests, including Mrs. Green and her eight children and their families: Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Smith and Barbara Ann, Mrs. Carrie Carrigan, Sam Carrigan, Mrs. Lou Hyatt, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Citty, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Green, Milam Green, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Green, John S. Green, O. R. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Green, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Sparks, and Misses Annie and Ella Fontaine and Bess Goodlett, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Agleton and little son, Jimmy, of Beeville, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Robins and Sonny of Washington, Robert May of Magnolia, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Tollett, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Tollett and son of Nashville.

After dinner guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Gus Tollett of Nashville, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Swunk, Mr. Tom Farley of Nashville, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lewis and Ray Lewis of De Queen, the two Mesdames Garners of Nashville, Mrs. Dave Barrow, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Osborn, Mrs. Chas. Irvin and two daughters, and Mrs. Stuart Monro, Lucille Carrigan and little daughter, and Mrs. Lucia Smith of Washington.

Mrs. Green, who is 89 years old, is Ozan's oldest living woman. Although she is blind and unable to leave her chair without assistance, she enjoyed the day. A thing of sadness mingled with the happiness for those present because three dearly beloved ones who attended the last reuion held at the Green home three years ago have passed on. They are Mrs. Lona Robins, Mrs. Mollie Citty, and George Green, the only child Mrs. Green has lost in death.

The day was thoroughly enjoyed by all present and it will hold memories that are precious to those who made themselves a part of the blessed reunion.

A wedding of great interest to their many friends and relatives of Ozan was that of Miss Jeanette Haselman, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Haselman, to Wilbur Robins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Robins. The marriage ceremony took place Tuesday, August 3, at the Baptist parsonage in Nashville. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Friel of Nashville were the only ones present.

The young couple are making their home with Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Robins.

All of their friends with them all the happiness and success that life may hold for them.

The Ozan Aces slugged out another victory Sunday afternoon on the Ozan diamond by defeating Hope with a score of 6 to 4. The game was the second one that the Aces have won from Hope.

Spectators stated that the game was one of the best games played by the Aces this season. Both teams showed real sportsmanship.

For the first few innings the score was 0-0; then Hope scored. The Aces soon gained the lead and held it until the close of the game.

One of the most thrilling plays of the game came when the Aces had two outs, three men on the bases and the batter up knocked a fly away out into the field where Hope's man caught it. Both teams played a good game.

The quarterly conference of the Ozan-Washington charge met at the Ozan Methodist church, at 3 p. m. Sunday, with the Rev. J. D. Baker, presiding elder of the Prescott district, presiding.

Representatives of the Washington, Ozan and St. Pauil churches were present. Billy Fred Robins resigned as superintendent of the Ozan Methodist Sunday school and J. K. Green was appointed to fill the vacancy. Other business matters were discussed and various reports made.

The Rev. Mr. conducted preaching services at the Ozan Methodist church Sunday night. In spite of the hot weather the congregation was exceedingly large.

Mrs. C. D. Ball and children spent several days in camp at Caddo Gap last week.

Harvey Couch Will Make Tour Europe

Family of Utilities Exective Will Accompany Him

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(AP)—Harvey C. Couch, Pine Bluff utility executive, left over the week-end for New York to start what he described as "the first real vacation I have ever taken."

He was accompanied by Frank M. Wikes, general manager of the Arkansas Power and Light company, and will spend a few days next week in New York winding up business affairs.

Mrs. Couch, their daughter, Catherine, and their son, William, left Sunday night for New York. The family will sail Wednesday on the Queen Mary for Cherbourg, starting a tour that will take them through France, Switzerland, Holland, England and Scotland. They will return early in September aboard the Empress of Britain, landing at Quebec.

Couch said he intended to combine some business with his pleasure trip.

"While in Europe, I expect to visit those sections of Germany where chemical and electrical developments are at their greatest," Couch said. "While in England I want to see something of the electric 'grid' system I have read so much about and see how it compares with our inter-connected systems here in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. They borrowed the plan from America but gave it the name 'grid' instead of inter-connection.

"I hope and expect to return fully rested, with some new ideas and lots of European money for use in the further development of this area."

Couch said he had just returned here from visits to Shreveport, New Orleans, Port Athur, Lakes Charles, Beaumont, Houston and Kansas City.

"Of course, I have conversed with bankers, industrialists and others in these cities," he said. "All are optimistic over the prospects for reaching a satisfactory agreement with the rural electrification administration that will enable us to give Arkansas one of the best and most extensive systems of rural electric lines existing in the United States."

The REA announced last week it would loan the Couch utility up to $500,000 for rural electrification in this state.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Holy Land Torn by Race Crisis

BLOOD has flown across the Holy Land for the last 15 years, marking increasing bitterness in the Jewish-Arab war for possession of Palestine. Now a British royal commission has recommended that the ancient country be divided into three parts: an Arab state, a Jewish state, and a British-controlled neutral area including Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth.

Since 1917 from the day that the late Lord Balfour promised to provide a "national home for Jewry" in the Holy Land, the Jewish people have clamored for control of Palestine. And for 1500 years the Arabs have considered this as "their country." Hence the rising tide of bitterness in recent years as the Jews have begun to repopulate the territory.

While the royal commission's plan goes before the League of Nations, 12,000 British troops guard the 1,000,000 Arabs and 400,000 Jewish colonists. Under the plan, by far the greater portion of the land would go to Arabs, but Jews would be aided in their colonization efforts. The government would also spend $10,000,000 for development of vast, backward trans-Jordania.

Britain's determination to "preserve the sanctity" of the holy places in Jerusalem, Bethlehem and other towns accounts for the suggestion of a neutral area. A stamp issued in 1927 shows the Jerusalem Citadel.

Buys Helmets, But Team Won't Wear 'Em

WASHINGTON.—Clark Griffith failed to consult his players when he went out and bought a carload of crash helmets, designed to prevent repetitions of the Mickey Cochrane skull-fracturing.

The helmets, consisting of a rubber tube wrapped around the outside of a regulation cap with a rubber pad inside, are sure protection but the Washington Nationals refuse to wear them.

"What? Me wear one of those things?" said Pete Appleton, voicing the sentiments of the squad, "why, it'd give me a headache and every time you'd take a cut at the ball you'd fall down, it's so heavy."

Eleven games are on the schedule, six to be played at home and five away. Some of the state's best teams are on the schedule, with a game with the Hot Springs Trojans at Hot Springs ending the season on Thanksgiving day.

The schedule is as follows:
Sept. 17—Dierks, here.
Sept. 24—Camden, there.

Alabama football players have played in four Rose Bowl games, winning three and tieing one. On the other trip to the coast the Tide whipped St. Mary's.

Pigeon-Toes Balance Cotton

LONDON—(NEA)—Lyte Cygril Tolley, Henry Cotton is slightly pigeon-toed, a physical trait which seems to make for balance on a full swing and gives the big hitter a solid platform from which to launch his stroke.

Some years ago the British Open and world match play champion stressed the inside-out swing so vigorously that his shots curved from right to left in a rainbow arc.

Today he has shifted from a closed to a square stance and his shots fly straight, with just the slightest shade of artistic draw.

Applications of CCC Boys Listed

Enrollees to Be Employed by Industries of State

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Applications of CCC enrollees soon to be discharged from camp are being released to employers of the state this week, it was announced jointly by Mr. W. A. Rooksbery, State Director, National Re-employment Service, and Major G. C. Graham, Commanding Officer of the CCC. This is the service provided to boys in isolated camps so that they may have the same opportunity for employment provided other applicants.

The program is a continuation of the plan recently begun by zone meetings held at Fort Smith, Russellville, Hot Springs, Monticello, Batesville and Little Rock. The CCC, the County agents for Selection, and the National Re-employment Service have initiated this attempt, which is the first of its kind in the United States.

Under the new legislation recently enacted by the congress of the United States, a nenrollee may not stay in camp longer than two years or past his twenty-fourth birthday. Many of the better prepared enrollees will be discharged. For that reason, it is particularly important that consideration be given to the group listed on the present applications.

"In consideration with the State Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Clubs and many civic organizations" Mr. Rooksbery said, "we are attempting to give employers good workers. Each applicant is recommended jointly by his company commander, his educational adviser, and his project superintendent. Such a recommendation by men who have lived and worked with enrollees should prove the best obtainable."

Lumber Firm Asks Dismissal Charges

Motion Says Union Has Failed to Establish Charges

MONTICELLO, Ark. — (AP) — The Crossett Lumber company, Crossett, Ark., asked the national labor relations board Saturday, at the conclusion of a two-weeks board hearing, to dismiss a complaint filed against it by the Carpenters and Joiners Union, alleging unfair labor practices in 1935. A ruling was deferred.

The motion to dismiss contended that the hearing had failed to establish the charges of the union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, that the company had discharged men for union activity and had otherwise discriminated against union workers during an unionization movement at the plant two years ago.

The company also contended that the hearing adduced no evidence that it was engaged in interstate commerce, or that it had violated the Wagner labor relations act. The motion alleged some of the complaining witnesses were laid off or discharged before the act became effective July 5, 1935, that there was an agreement with the union on August 12, 1935, that employes discharged before August 7 of that year need not be re-employed unless the company so wished, and that the evidence failed to show any discharge or lay off after August 7 because of union membership.

Reserving judgment, Trial Examiner D. Lacy McBryde said the motion would be entertained.

Rebuttal witnesses for the government closed testimony Saturday.

Business Opportunity Spurs Railroads Into Track Race

So flimsy that a freight train probably could not pass over the rails without disaster, two railroads raced to complete spurs across the New Jersey meadows to tap the lucrative freight business of the huge new automobile assembly plant at Linden, N. Paralleling each other above are the Pennsylvania, left, and New Jersey Central spurs.

With the

Hempstead Home Agent

By MELVA BULLINGTON

Nature lore is a favorite hobby in Hempstead county, particularly among the 4-H club boys and girls, says Miss Melva Bullington, home demonstration agent.

"Once a person yearns to love the great-out-of-doors, he can never be bored again, because there will always be some new secret to learn about the trees or birds, flowers or stars," says Miss June Donahue, extension specialist in community actiivties.

"A boy who likes to build things will like to construct bird houses, bird feeders ,insect nets, and exhibit cases. The natural-born collector will delight in flower charts, smoke prints of leaves, and bird feathers. The active people will hike, climb, and swim, and incidentally, learn to do these things without defacing or destroying nature's resources.

"A student of nature learns to be a close observer, and he becomes conservation minded," Miss Donahue points out.

Frozen desserts, whether they are made in a freezer or an automatic refrigerator, are easily the most popular of all dishes on the summer menu in Hempstead county. According to Miss Bullington, home demonstration agent, they have great food value when they are made with fruits, fruit juices, and milk products.

As easy as they are to make, there are a few "tricks" in the preparation. According to Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, freezing does not kill bacteria, but only retards their growth. Food poisoning may occur when the frozen mixture is allowed to melt and then refrozen, since, when it melts, the bacteria become active and spoil the food quickly, she cautions.

The freezer can and paddle should be washed in cold water as soon as it is emptied, and then washed in hot soap suds, and rinsed well with clear boiling water. Before using it should be scalded, and then chilled in cold water. These precautions are necessary to avoid food contamination, the nutritionist said. The freezer bucket should also be washed as soo has it is emptied or the salt solution will soon rust it. If the bucket is wood, the hoops will rust, and if it is galvanized iron, the whole bucket will rust. An inexpensive freezer may be used for several years if good care is taken of it.

Since a large proportion of cream must be used to avoid needles of ice in a frozen produce made in an automatic refrigerator, Miss Conant suggests freezing the mixture in an ordinary freezer, and then packing the product in an automatic refrigerator to ripen. Too rich ice creams are expensive, and also furnish too much body heat for summer, she points out.

1,200 Home Demonstration Club Women Expected to Attend Annual Fifth State Meet—Hempstead Club Prepares for Trip

From the time 75 Japanese lanterns are lighted on the lawn surrounding Lloyd England Hall at Camp Pike the evening of August 10 until the tour of Little Rock on August 13, the program o fthe fifth annual Arkansas State Home Demonstration Club Camp will be full of interest and entertainment for 1,200 delegates.

Veteran campers will know their way through the long rows of tents and will recognize the bugle calls summoning them to breakfast, to meetings, or telling them it is time for "lights out." But row captains will be on hand to introduce the many new delegates, who will be coming to camp for the first time, to the mysteries of life in any army camp.

Even the veterans will find many new features on the program. The lawn party will give the delegates an opportunity to meet camp officials, and will be climaxed by a summer-night serenade. Each county council in the state is making a Japanese lantern for the event. National Guard officials, the State Council officers, and members of the State Home Demonstration staff will be in the receiving line to greet the entire delegation, and county council presidents and the camp pages will preside at the punch bowl. Incidentally, the Camp's "Emily Post" advises that the regulation uniform of the camp, a cotton dress, is the thing to wear to the reception.

The same authority suggests low-heeled, comfortable shoes, for, as the veterans will know, there is considerable walking to be done if the campers get around to see everything that is to be seen and to hear all the discussions.

Most of the exhibits will be placed in the Administration Building, the general assemblies will be in Lloyd England Hall, and the group meetings will be scattered over the camp grounds.

A home demonstration marketing exhibit, and a display of pictures and materials of "homemade homes" will be among the new exhibits. Furniture made at home will be another new display which, with the rugs, handicraft, scrapbooks, and clothing exhibits will make the Administration Building a popular place during camp.

Seventy-one counties in the state will be represented in the cotton house dress contest, according to Miss Sue Marshall, extension specialist in clothing and household arts, 62 will have entrants in the church revue, and 50 will be entered in the afternoon style dress revue. At least 64 counties will send exhibits of children's clothing made of new materials, and 56 counties will be represented in the thrift class.

Mrs. J. L. Rosencrantz, president of the state council; Miss Connie J. Bonslagal, state home demonstration agent; and Dr. Louis Bean, economic adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture, will be the principal speakers on the Wednesday morning program. Mrs. L. B. Sallee, Randolph county, and Mrs. W. L. Woods, Ashley county, will give the reports of home demonstration activities in the northeast and southeast districts, and county council presidents from these districts will be seated on the stage. Miss Wilma McKelvey, vice-president of the University 4-H club, will be the last speaker on the program.

Sectional meetings concerning personal improvement, local leaders' work, reporting, child development and parental education, consumer education, dramatics, and publicity will be held from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and will be followed by army drill, an hour for swimming and other recreation, and the annual shrub planting ceremony at the bandstand.

Mrs. D. L. Terry, of Little Rock; C. C. Randall, assistant extension director, Gov. Carl E. Bailey, and R. E. Short, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation, will be the speakers at the Wednesday evening session, when the theme will be "The Community and State."

District reports for the northwest and southwest districts will be given by Mrs. Charles Rogers, Union county, and Mrs. Louis Oats, Conway county, on Thursday morning, when the county council presidents of these districts will be seated on the stage. A memorial service to Mrs. E. L. Salyers, former state council president, will be led by Mrs. R. C. Harville, of Pulaki county. Dr. Roy Roberts, of the College o fAgriculture, and Dr. H. W. Blalock, state utilities commission, will speak at this session of the camp, and Mrs. Agnes Neilson Grove will give a lecture on home life in Sweden.

The election of state council officers will climax the Thursday morning session.

Group meetings that afternoon will be concerned with business facts for the homemaker, community interests, rural electrification, and home building. A number of home demonstration club women and well-known speakers will appear on the programs of the group meetings.

The style dress revue, a one-act play presented by the winners in the state drama tournament, another new feature o fthe camp this year, dramatization of songs and poems, music by the state chorus, and the introduction of incoming officers will feature the final session of the camp on Thursday evening.

A tour of Little Rock and other points of interest in the immediate vicinity will be the last event on the camp program.

Nurses from the Arkansas Crippled Children's Home in Little Rock, and Miss Ruth Beal, superintendent of the Home, will be in charge of the first aid tent to render asssitance to ailing campers. Last year patients were treated for everything from blistered heels to headaches. This morning service is a voluntary contribution from the staff of the Home in appreciation to the home demonstration club women of Arkansas who have sent many contributions of canned products and linens to the Home. The nurses will give their time from the hours when they are off duty, and all first-aid supplies, medicine, and equipment, will be donated by the Home.

THERE'S PLENTY DOING when Bob Bullock's in the game! Follow him. (He's wearing the dark shirt.) Bob is one of the great No. 3's of polo—plays this key position with strategy, skill, and courage!

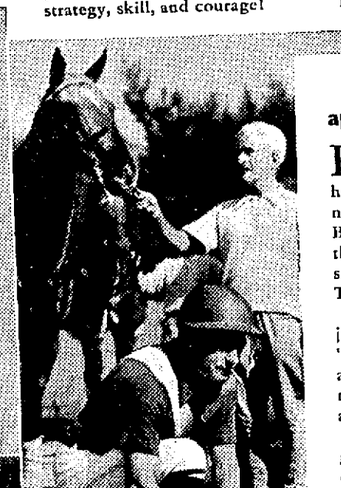

RIGHT ON THE NOSE! Consistent, accurate hitting makes Bob Bullock a dangerous scoring threat. Above, he rides an opponent out of play—at the same time makes a well-timed shot to the uprights at blinding speed!

CLOSE QUARTERS! Bullock is famous as a hard-riding defense player too. Above, he's playing to retrieve the ball for his side. Like Lou Gehrig (the Iron Man of Baseball), and Glenn Hardin (World's Champion Hurdler), Bob Bullock has a decided preference for Camels. He's smoked Camels for over a decade.

HELEN HOWARD, diver, realizes what healthy nerves mean. Does she smoke? "I smoke as many Camels as I please," Helen says.

CAPT. BILL HATCH, noted fishing skipper, says: "After a tough fight with a big one, when I feel tired, I get a 'lift' in energy with a Camel."

Naturally Bob Bullock appreciates mild smoking

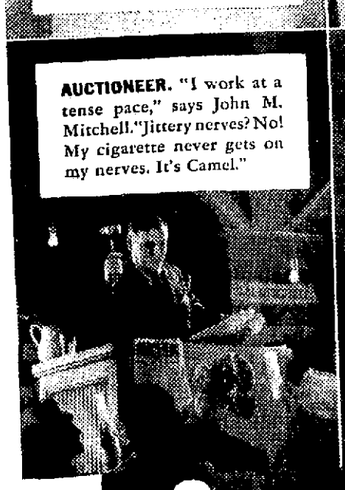

POLO enthusiasts will agree with Mr. Bullock that it takes healthy nerves to play polo—nerves that don't fail in a pinch. Bob Bullock says: "Camels deserve the blue ribbon for mildness. I've smoked Camels every day for years. They never jangle my nerves!"

Mealtime (right) finds Bob enjoying Camels—for digestion's sake. "Smoking Camels at mealtimes and afterwards adds a world of enjoyment to eating," he says. "'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

For mildness, flavor, and fragrance—make it Camels! Camels costlier tobaccos are naturally mild, fine-flavored, and fragrant.

AUCTIONEER. "I work at a tense pace," says John M. Mitchell. "Jittery nerves? No! My cigarette never gets on my nerves. It's Camel."

NO JANGLED NERVES for busy secretary. Miss Rosamond Morse says: "I can't afford jangled nerves! That's why I prefer Camels."
